As Oscar-nominated “The Big Short” and acclaimed TV series “Billions” have shown, there’s a large audience willing to watch stories set in the financial world.

Now a West Hollywood production company is hoping the same proves to be true for theater.

Indie Chi Productions is staging a new play called “Dinner at Home Between Deaths” at West L.A.’s Odyssey Theatre about ethical dilemmas faced by a high-powered financier. The company and playwright, Andrea Lepico, would like to see the show grow into an international touring hit.

“Finance remains a world of mystery to many, but this play gets inside the minds and hearts of the ones with the money,” said Lepico, who used to work on Wall Street as a research analyst.
